Strawhat Tryouts- Finale

Michael and Lavinia, John Matthews new comedy debuted at Matamoras, HI starring Uta Hagen, was panned as a studied satire which lacks the spark of spontaneity, by Malo, Variety. Script may be salvaged by a broader melodramatic performance, he noted...My Aunt Daisy, Halper-Schrank comedy with Jo Van Fleet which tried out at Westport, Conn, Country Playhouse, is a poor script which received a poor production, reported Doul, Variety. Van Fleet acts as if she were Geraldine Page in a Shirley Booth vehicle, sums up trade paper mugg.

Out of Town Tryouts

Midsummer Night's Dream production of Old Vic debuted at Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival, Darlington, NY Times, stated that Robert Helpmann is the hit of the production, while Moira Shearer's voice is very hard to hear. Emphasis on music, ballet and spectacle, he adds, lessens comic effect of Shakespeare...Home is the Hero, which debuted at Westport, Conn, Country Playhouse, is a fine, sombre new play by and with Walter Macken of Dublin, rates Doul, Variety. It is an Irish play engagingly free of most of the cliches of most Irish plays, critic okayed.

Hurricane Hits Eastern Summer Theatres

News reports of the effects of "Hurricane Carol" included the closing from one to three days of several summer theatres on the eastern seacoast. Westhampton Beach, New York, was closed most of the week because of lack of power and audience. Tent theatres at Hyannis, Mass and Cohasset, Mass were literally blown away. Coonamassett, Mass, and Oquiquit, Maine, were both closed half a week due to power failures.

Bucks County Sept Schedule

Michael Ellis will continue productions at his Bucks County, Pa. Playhouse through Nov 28. Following Sabrina Fair with Constance Bennett, he will present Gaby Rodgers in The Facts of Life, a new play by John D Hess, the week of Sept 13. Louis Beauchner and Nancy Marshall will appear the week of Sept 20 in Patricia Collinge's adaptation of the French farce Dame Nature. Magda Gabor stars in Bernadine the week of Sept 27. REVIEWING SERIOUS DRAMAS...Plays with ideas, with important things to say and possessing a certain suggestion of intellectual content, necessarily call for a high standard of judgement, explains Watts, Post. It is the job of the reviewer to bear on such plays this more rigorous standard of examination. It is also his job to point out that it is the more important quality present in what he is writing about that calls for the rigor. The critic in such cases, he feels, should see that the emphasis in his review is properly placed on the merits.

COLUMN TIPS...A Broadway producer will be challenged to a duel by Oleg Cassini, hears Winchell...MBC is offering $65,000 to Katharine Hepburn to appear in a TV play, reports Kilgallen...Harry Nemo's all Negro musical The Happy Way will be the best since Blackbirds, predicts Sobel.

ON BRITISH PLAYERS...British acting is on the whole better than American acting if the actor is pushing forty, sums up Kerr, Herald Tribune, after several weeks of London playgoing. While young English actors can be quite as dull, and quite as hollow as some of the earnest amateurs who produce plays much too big for them on the Broadway fringes. The middle aged British actor develops because he accepts all kind of acting jobs. American actors after a few Broadway credits start to choose their scripts and roles.

CRITICAL THOUGHTS...Can-Can's Lilo is a human dynamo who can belt the bricks out of the back wall of a theatre, raves Coleman, Mirror...The advent of Hayride, the hillbilly musical starring Sunshine Sue, is not frightening, Billboard editorial points out to Kilgallen, Journal American, who panned same. Trade paper finds more frightening fact that columnist can express with such consummate bad taste her lack of knowledge of one of show business' major forms.

AMERICAN SHAKESPEARE...Any attempt to teach the British accent to students of the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre and Academy at Stratford, Conn., will be regarded by Chapman, News, as an act of infiltration and subversion. The American language, properly spoken, is a beautiful tongue. The American Negro has the finest speaking and acting voice, critic states, and should be included on the staff of Lawrence Langer's project.

INTERVIEW HI-LITES...Chester Morris and Joseph Buloff, the new leads in The Fifth Season, both were offered the script first time round and both turned it down, McHarry, News, learned...Summer theatre audiences now follow the stars, not the plays, Richard Aldrich, who ran who ran 3 Cape barns, told Morehouse, WT & S... Mia Slavenska, ballerina at Arabian Nights, commuted daily 106 miles from her Demarest, NJ, home to Jones Beach, LI, Reports Herridge, Post.

Pros & Cons by TMK

Fifth Season's success or failure in NY with almost an entirely new cast will be watched with interest. If it succeeds after a "summer vacation" it will be one of the few shows in recent years that was able to close down for the warm period and then resume. Usually this trick is merely wishful thinking by the producer. The ticket buying public is not as hopeful, and usually likes to buy tickets to shows they know will be open. In the past producers have been forced to submit to stars demands for summer vacations. This in the past has meant posting a closing notice when star leaves. Teahouse of August Moon solved its problem by replacing David Wayne for a ten week period with Burgess Meredith. Producer will give money back to any patron not satisfied with the substitution. "Vacations" in the theatre are hectic and costly.

A campaign to urge the Post Office Department to issue a series of stamps commemorating persons who have contributed to the art of the theatre in the US has been set up by Jacques Minkus, manager of Gimbel's stamp department. The group has received the endorsement of the Council of the Living Theatre, Katharine Cornell, and Guthrie McClintic. Shakespeare appears on a stamp of Hungary, while Sarah Bernhardt is honored on a French stamp.
